

Kevin Snyder is not a naturally motivated person or someone who enjoyed speaking. After recovering from depression at just 12 years old, Kevin felt called to help inspire others in some way. His speaking started over 20 years ago because making presentations to students was part of his job working in Student Affairs. Most recently Kevin served as Dean of Students at High Point University. He resigned HPU to pursue speaking full time and has now presented keynotes and trainings for 1,150+ organizations in all 50 states and several countries. He's the author of several books, two of them being Amazon #1 New Releases and his best-sellers - "PAID to $PEAK: How to Become a Professional Speaker" and "Think Differently to Achieve Success." Although he and his family are based in Raleigh, North Carolina, you'll usually find Kevin outside playing with his kids, working on his koi pond or captaining his Airbnb boat for sailing charters along the Intercoastal Waterway.
